The Chicago Past has an enviable reputation as a clean, straightforward, sound Republican new spaper. It is soon to be very much cularged. As a newspaper it is excellent, its market and telegraphic reports are full and accurate; its editorials are brief, clear on subjects of public interest, and carefully written. It him carnest advicate of all genuine reforms, and while soundly Republican, it gives practical evidence of its adhesion to the famous maxim of Presient Hayes, that "He serves his country best."
